Write On Films

Mandate Statement:

16814671 Canada Inc, going business as Write On Films is an Indigenous-women-led film production company committed to telling stories that honour ancestral wisdom, spiritual truth, and Indigenous worldviews. Founded and guided by Paula R (deMontigny) Montgomery, who is an Indigenous spiritual woman and spirit talker, our company exists to uplift Indigenous voices, preserve sacred knowledge, and foster cultural sovereignty through the art of film and media.

We produce narrative and documentary works that centre Indigenous perspectives, traditions, and spiritual teachings with integrity, respect, and purpose. Our storytelling is a vessel for healing, truth-telling, and resistance against erasure. Each project is approached with ceremony, consultation, and collaboration, guided by spiritual principles and community accountability.

We are committed to:

- Cultural and Spiritual Integrity: Ensuring all content is created in alignment with Indigenous protocols and values.
- Indigenous Leadership: Upholding Indigenous women and two-spirit leadership at every level of production and decision-making.
- Community Collaboration: Partnering with Indigenous communities, knowledge keepers, and artists to co-create meaningful and respectful representations.
- Creative Sovereignty: Maintaining control over narrative frameworks and resisting mainstream dilution of Indigenous stories.
- Education and Empowerment: Supporting mentorship and capacity-building for emerging Indigenous filmmakers and storytellers.

Our vision is a media landscape where female and Indigenous stories are not only told but are told by us, for us, and with sacred intention. In collaboration with Canadian companies and creatives who hold similar values and objectives, we are committed to telling good stories.
